The Dixons carried the first books.

A Moving Experience

Wednesday, April 29 was the day that 1500 students, faculty, and staff moved more than 100,000 books into Cedarville's new Library. Director Lynn Brock '68 estimated that workers traveled a combined total of 3,000 miles to accomplish the monumental task. Classes were cancelled for the day and, following a special 8:00 a.m. chapel service, the move began.

Steve Brown, associate director of library services, devised a five-color code system to facilitate the move. Each volunteer worker was assigned to one of the color teams and was responsible to follow lines and arrows of their corresponding color to assure proper placement of books and periodicals in specific areas of the new Library. As a result of the organized color-code system combined with the enthusiasm of those involved, the task of moving the books was completed two hours ahead of schedule. As a token of appreciation and to commemorate the event, each participant received a "Moving Experience" T-shirt designed by college artist Les Troyer.

Although the Library is not yet completed and new furniture and some library equipment have not yet arrived, some areas of the new Library are functional. The 67,000 square foot facility has a 250,000 volume capacity and features an instructional media center, computer links to on and off campus networks, special collections and archives, and the latest technology in a language lab.

In a letter of thanks to all who helped with the move, Judy Johnson '73, reference librarian, summarized the activities of April 29 by writing, "Not many people have ringside seats at a miracle, but I did today. From my vantage point as a marshal responsible for traffic flow in and out of the new building, I had the privilege of watching the impossible happen. Psalm 115:1 puts it best: 'Not unto us, O LORD, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory.'"

Cedarville Graduates Largest Class

During the 91st commencement exercises on June 6, Cedarville College graduated its largest class and conferred two honorary doctorates. Cedarville president Dr. Paul Dixon addressed the 400 graduates and an audience of 3,000 friends and family members of the graduates. The College presented to each graduate a medallion to commemorate membership in the

Jeff Beste, President's Trophy winner, is a mathematics major from Mt. Vernon, Indiana.

A Word With Alumni

Dear Alumnus,

1987 has certainly been a banner year for your alma mater and for your Alumni Association. On January 26, the Charter Day Convocation kicked off the Centennial activities. The College conferred the Doctor of Letters degree on Dr. Warren Wiersbe, who delivered an unforgettable message entitled, "Buy the Truth and Sell It Not." Doctor of Letters degrees were conferred posthumously on the first two college presidents, David McKinney and Wilbert McChesney. Tapes of the Convocation are available through WCDR.

The Celebration continued with the old timey events of Cedar Day which many alumni and friends from the community came to enjoy (see photos on page 4).

The Alumni Association successfully matched the $150,000 challenge grant for the new library in addition to increasing substantially our three scholarship funds to assist worthy and needy students. With great appreciation to the Alumni Association, all 11 academic departments granted $500 alumni scholarships at the Honors Day Chapel (see photo below).

You may wish to express, along with me, gratitude to Don Leach and Debby Haffey, whose terms as Council members expire this October. Desiring to advance our association and our College, they have contributed numerous volunteer hours. I salute them for their dedication and vision and want them to know that I have greatly valued and appreciated their contributions.

Please take time to mark your ballot for new council members on the last page of this issue and mail it to us. I encourage you to correspond with these elected representatives and to share with them your comments and concerns.

I want to thank publicly John Tobias and Clancy Cruise, the presidents of the Classes of 1937 and 1987, for their vision and leadership. They presented beautiful and lasting class gifts at the 91st commencement (see photos on page 7).

I'm eager to hear your reaction to our new Aviso format.

Best wishes for a great summer!

The Student Academic Advisory Board named David Warren '64, associate professor of Bible (left), the 1986-87 Faculty Member of the Year. The 1986-87 Staff Member of the Year award was given to Dick Walker '74N, director of campus activities (right). Sandy (Millikin '59) Entner received the Distinguished Service Award.

Nominations for the Alumnus of the Year, Honorary Alumnus of the Year, and the Distinguished Service Award recipient are being accepted. Please write a short paragraph about your nominee stating why you think he or she is a worthy candidate and mail to the alumni office.

Homecoming '87 October 16 & 17

This event-filled weekend is the climax of the 1987 Centennial Celebration at Cedarville College. You'll want to check the schedule at the right and plan to take part in as many activities as possible.

Be sure to witness the dedication of the new Library, the capstone of the Centennial Campaign. Rejoice with us as you tour this marvelous facility which the Lord has provided.

IT WON'T BE THE SAME WITHOUT U!

Highlighting the Homecoming Weekend is "As the Cedar Grows," a pageant depicting our College's history, written by David Robey and inspired by Miriam Maddox. You may see this extravaganza, boasting a cast of over 100, on either Friday or Saturday night.

Also plan to enjoy the All-Alumni Reunion. Alumni from the classes ending in "2" and "7" will have their traditional reunions while those from all classes may fellowship in the Athletic Center throughout Saturday afternoon.

Mark October 16 & 17 on your calendar and enjoy the biggest Homecoming in Cedarville's history!

Johnson Honored, Will Trade Hats

from the alumni and a scrapbook of letters from well-wishers. Jack Campbell, chairman of the Staff Committee to the President, presented him with a broken tennis racquet to be redeemed for a graphite model, a gift from the staff of the College. Chancellor James T. Jeremiah and Johnson's daughter Merilee ('74) Shank gave verbal tributes and two of the Shank children (Craig and Katie) provided a musical tribute to their grandfather.

Following chapel, some 40 family members, friends, and faculty joined Dr. Johnson and his wife Eunice for lunch in the President's Dining Room. Other immediate family members are son Timothy, son-in-law Steve Shank '74 and granddaughter Kimberly Shank.

A native of Tacoma, Washington and a veteran of World War II, Dr. Clifford Johnson holds degrees from Western Washington State University and the University of Washington. In 1962, he came to Cedarville College to become registrar and director of admissions, then served as chairman of the Teacher Education Department before accepting the position of academic dean in 1964.

During his tenure, he restructured the teacher education program in order to effect state certification. He was instrumental in securing accreditation for the College and in introducing a multitude of programs, the most recent being nursing. When he became academic dean in 1964, the College offered 15 academic majors and special programs to an enrollment of 600 students. Presently the College lists 44 majors and special programs for over 1800 students. Johnson has encouraged study abroad programs and extension courses from the College in other cities.

His co-workers cite his positive, optimistic attitude and his promotion of a wholesome administration-student relationship. He advises, "Be an encourager. Encourage people to experiment with new and different programs. Give people an openness to keep up with the times."

April 30 was Cliff Johnson Day at Cedarville. The College honored Dr. Clifford W. Johnson, academic vice president, for his 25 years with the College, 23 of which he has served as chief academic officer. He will assume the duties of assistant to the president in the fall.

The tribute to Cliff Johnson began during the morning chapel service with a media presentation recalling highlights of his years of service followed by a number of presentations.

Andy Wilson, president of Student Government Association, presented Johnson with a slightly altered facsimile of the popular Centennial sweatshirt. SGA also treated Dr. and Mrs. Johnson to dinner and a symphony performance in Cincinnati. Director of Alumni Relations Gary Kuhn gave Johnson a citation

A New Addition: The Charter Society

The Annual Fund Office announces a new program to better serve the stewardship needs of alumni and friends and to recognize the heritage of the College in this Centennial year.

The Charter Society is designed for those who wish to give $500 or more to the Annual Fund in a calendar year. Previously, the College provided only two specific giving programs — the Torch Club ($120 per year) and the President's Associates ($1,000 or more per year). Since many desire to give more than the Torch Club level but are not ready to achieve the level of giving of a President's Associate, the Annual Fund Office designed this program with a special package of benefits for those who become Charter Society members.

The name "Charter Society" recalls the commitment of our five founders as they pursued a charter for the College in 1887. Those who join the Charter Society during 1987 are recognized as charter members.

Any alumnus who wishes to know more about the structure and benefits of this new program should contact Jeff Brock, Director of the Annual Fund.

Humorous Story Contest

At least once, if not several times during your collegiate experience, you participated in or experienced a humorous prank. Take a few minutes to jot down one of those experiences and enter this special Centennial Contest. There are three prizes: College Bookstore Gift Certificates of $50, $30, and $20.

The contest deadline is August 1, 1987. Edit your story to 500 words and send it to Aviso Editor, Cedarville College, P.O. Box 601, Cedarville, OH 45314. This contest is sponsored by the Alumni Association and the College Bookstore.

The results of Opportunity 1987, theme for this year's alumni phonothon, broke all previous records with over $30,000 being raised. Approximately 180 students were involved in this effort to contact alumni by phone.

Don Wyrzten, executive vice president, Zondervan Music Group, addressed the topic, "The Christian and Music," for the annual Inforum in April.

From The Heart

My association with Cedarville College now spans 27 years — first as a student, then as an Ohio pastor returning to campus for conferences or introducing prospective students to the school, and now as a faculty member in the Biblical Education Department. Over those years I have developed a mental set about the school which now I gladly share with you. Cedarville College is a group of ordinary people who are seeking to do an extraordinary job for their Lord.

A few disclaimers may be necessary. This statement is not meant to be a technical definition of this "mental institution," but is rather a description. The definition can be found in the catalog; I am sharing an impression from my heart. Further, to describe the people at the College as "ordinary" is not intended to put them down. I simply mean that the staff, faculty, and administrators of the school are normal people (the students are, too!). They are people who share the full spectrum of life with all other people. They, too, live, love, laugh, and long. Some might argue that faculty members are specialists and thus a "cut above" the ordinary, but when you get close to them you discover they are people who do not put on airs or who try to impress anyone with their credentials. Their training and degrees are simply the tools of their trade which they hold in common with all other workers who have expertise in their chosen vocations.

But you may ask, "In what areas are the ordinary Cedarville people seeking to do an extraordinary job for their Lord?" Here's my answer:

The work ethic at Cedarville College is unusually alive and well. Many people put in many hours to accomplish many tasks to meet many deadlines. Beginning with the leadership of Dr. McKinney and Dr. McChesney and continuing into the years of Dr. Jeremiah and Dr. Dixon, hard work has been viewed as normal fare. Overtime work without overtime pay is fairly common among staff people, and the lights keep burning in many faculty studies beyond ordinary working hours. Representing the school in off-campus arenas and fulfilling committee responsibilities keep faculty members hopping between classroom sessions. The quarter system lends itself to a concentrated way of life and extraordinary busyness. Workers — not shirkers — are employed at Cedarville.

Our commitment to excellence is also an extraordinary driving force at the College. A recent guest on campus encouraged us to submit one of our advertising pieces for competition at the national level; he was sure it would win a prize. Neatly groomed lawns and beautifully arranged flower beds speak eloquently of our care for the smallest of details. The new Library, four years in the planning stage, is one of the finest among small colleges any where. When over 75% of the students who have been dismissed for disciplinary reasons return to campus to complete their programs, you know that the student personnel people are going beyond ordinary rule enforcement to extraordinary spiritual ministry in individual lives. Our campus-wide, on-going strategic planning process says that we are not satisfied with the status quo; we plan for continuing excellence at every level.

We take very seriously the example of King Hezekiah of whom the Chronicler wrote, "And in every work that he began in the service of the house of God...he did it with all his heart, and prospered" (II Chronicles 31:21). Or, as Paul put it, "And whatever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord" (Colossians 3:23). Both Hezekiah and Paul were extraordinary believers. Pray for us as we attempt to continue to move beyond our ordinariness to an extraordinary level of life and service for Christ!

Trustees Appoint Alumnus

Randy Patten, new trustee

Rev. Randy Patten '71, state representative of the Indiana Fellowship of Regular Baptist Churches, become the second Cedarville graduate (with Lynn Rogers '54) on the 32-member Board of Trustees at Cedarville College.

Randy and his wife Cindy (Cartner '70) are excited about this new avenue of service and are looking forward to the responsibilities and challenges of this new role.

During a three-day orientation in April, they met with each college administrator to learn his particular role in the ministry and organization of the College. They also were part of an informal session with student leaders which helped them understand the needs and views of the student body. This orientation process will continue throughout Randy's first year as he becomes more familiar with the inner workings of the board. During the four board meetings he will participate in the sessions of the committees (academic, student life, development, and business) within the Board of Trustees.

A speech major at Cedarville, Randy developed his leadership abilities as freshman class chaplain, vice-president and president of Alpha Chi, and president of his senior class. He was also a dorm supervisor, a member of the student affairs committee and debate team, and appeared in Who's Who among Students in American Colleges and Universities. He expressed his enthusiasm for Cedarville when he raised over $1,000 in the first student body project walk-a-thon. Randy received the President's Trophy in 1971.

Desiring to serve God as a pastor, Randy earned the Master of Divinity degree at Grace Theological Seminary. In 1974, before completing his seminary training, he was called to pastor the Westridge Baptist Church in Ft. Wayne, Indiana where he ministered for 12 years. In June 1986, Randy was appointed the state representative for the Indiana Fellowship of Regular Baptist Churches.

Randy brings to the board a strong commitment to the inspiration and sufficiency of the Scripture and desires to help maintain and even to strengthen the conviction Cedarville College holds regarding the importance of the Word of God. As an alumnus, Randy has an intense loyalty to Cedarville and its ministry, particularly in relation to alumni. He also wants to be sensitive to the input of supporting churches and prospective students.

Cedar Day

A spirit of nostalgia prevailed at Cedar Day 1987 with high-wheeled bicycles and old fashioned attire in evidence. Many alumni and friends from the community came to campus to enjoy the picnic on the lawn, Friday night's Classics Quartet concert, and Saturday's highlights: the picnic basket auction, crafts show, community ice cream social, the drama production "The Importance of Being Earnest," and a performance by the alumni choir consisting of former Concert Choir, Choralaires, and Concert Chorale members. The Senior Class won the 100 mile relay in 11 hrs. 32 min. 55 sec.

Stewardship Invests in the Future

Bob Rohm, director of planned giving

Six years later, Bob was persuaded that the Lord was calling him to the ministry. He moved his family, which now included two children, to Fruitport, Michigan in order to attend Grand Rapids Baptist Seminary. As a student and following graduation, Bob served as associate pastor of the Fruitport Bethel Baptist Church. His ministry included a strong emphasis in personal stewardship through financial counseling. After serving for 12 years in this position, he felt the Lord calling him into a new ministry.

In August, 1986 Bob accepted the position of director of planned giving and moved his family to Cedarville. As director, his responsibility is to assist the friends of the College in charitable estate planning. His ministry is designed to help people give current and deferred gifts through wills, annuities, trusts, retirement benefits, insurance policies, and other means. He assists the donor in carrying out his/her wishes by coordinating professional advisors where necessary in drawing up proper legal documents.

Bob also prepares materials for will clinics in local churches. The clinics are designed to deal with stewardship of life, especially relating to information on wills and trusts. The individual, as well as the local church and the College, benefits from the clinic.

For alumni who are interested, various brochures and pamphlets are available upon request. Bob would be happy to talk with donors in the privacy of their homes to discuss ideas and answer questions related to any area of charitable estate planning.

Planned giving is an opportunity for God's people to exercise biblical stewardship in providing for their family and giving to Cedarville College. Bob believes that each of us is accountable to God for the management of the resources we have been given.

As director of planned giving, Bob Rohm faces new and exciting challenges every day. He considers it rewarding to know that he has a part in the success of Cedarville College and its anticipation of another 100 years in stewardship and service for Christ, should He tarry.

The most popular spring intramural sport is softball. This year 550 students played on 32 teams. Other intramural sports included walleyball, tennis, golf, and putt-putt.

Committed to studying and to preserving the beauties of creation and to making fellow students aware of their responsibilities as stewards of natural resources, a group of students have formed the Earth Stewardship Organization. Their advisor is Dr. John Silvius, professor of biology. Their projects will range from cleaning and caring for the campus and surrounding community to involvement in "Project Living Water," a balanced approach to evangelism sponsored by Evangelical Baptist Missions.

The Business Office: A Resource Ministry

Sooner or later everyone at Cedarville College comes in contact with the Business Office in Founders Hall. Through its Budget Office and Controller, the Business Office keeps track of the financial obligations of every student, every office, and every academic department on campus. Through the Personnel Office, it ministers to the support staff of the College.

In wisely managing the resources of Cedarville College, Vice President for Business Kenneth St. Clair and his staff strive to undergird sound financial management with principles of biblical stewardship — they make the most of everything God has entrusted to their care.

Arriving on the Cedarville campus in 1959 to chair the Business Administration Department, St. Clair took over management of the Business Office four years later. He holds both bachelor and master's degrees from the University of Illinois and is a C.P.A., State of Illinois. His wife, Ida, serves as receptionist-switchboard operator for the College.

St. Clair, assisted by his secretary Dorothy Spencer, oversees the activities of controller Dick Bowersox, budget director Joel Veldt, and personnel director Ed Clark.

Both Bowersox and his wife Bernice are Cedarville graduates. Dick '68 worked at Wright State until 1979 when he joined the Business Office staff at Cedarville, and Bernice '70 was an adjunct professor in the Department of Social Sciences and History.

Controller Bowersox and his staff are responsible for incoming and outgoing funds, financial records, payroll, and financial registration of students. A new computer system which should be on-line July 1 will facilitate the record keeping. Bowersox supervises cashiers Nancy Fissel, Margaret Burrichter, and Rose Bowen; accounts payable/receivable clerk Debbie Cagwin; and payroll clerk Pat Lee.

Vice President for Business Kenneth St. Clair and his secretary, Dorothy Spencer

Through the encouragement of one of the trustees, head cashier Nancy Fissel '68N returned to Cedarville 18 years ago to serve in the Business Office. In 1976 Margaret Burrichter, a graduate of Faith Baptist Bible College, joined the Business Office staff. Rose Bowen recently transferred to the Business Office from Housekeeping. Debbie Cagwin, accounts payable clerk, has three brothers who are Cedarville grads. Pat Lee prepares payroll checks for over 900 employees at the College (full and part-time faculty, staff, and students) and handles the payroll taxes.

Joel Veldt '82 joined the Business Office as budget director this year. A business administration major with accounting emphasis Joel passed the C.P.A. exams on the first attempt. Assisted by secretary Joyce King, Veldt works with those who prepare departmental budgets and reviews their requests. He, Vice President St. Clair, and President Dixon rework the various budgets into a unified budget to submit to the trustees for approval. Then Veldt oversees the spending throughout the year and works with the Planning Committee to assess future needs.

Ed Clark directs the Personnel Department — the department that ministers to the "human resources" of the College. Clark brought many years of experience in business to the position when he arrived at Cedarville four years ago. He interviews prospective staff employees and strives to place them where they can best use their talents and abilities for the Lord and for the college. Clark's department is concerned with employee benefits and morale and also with problems, which he states are extremely minimal. Ed's wife Amy serves as his secretary.

Two of Cedarville's strengths are the financial stability and the employee morale which it has enjoyed over the years. Aviso commends the hard-working staff of the Business Office and the consistently fine leadership of Kenneth St. Clair. These 12 people are God-honoring stewards of the resources with which the Lord has chosen to bless Cedarville College.

The Cedarville College Copy Center prints most campus documents and materials, producing about 8,000 copies in a day with a yearly average of 1.6 million. The center is under the supervision of Bonnie (Biekert '83) Vickman.

Centennial History Released

On June 5, the Centennial Committee released Cedarville College: A Century of Commitment, a new history of the College written by Dr. J. Murray Murdoch, chairman of the Department of Social Sciences and History. Through its 172 pages and 180 pictures, this work shares the blessings and the struggles of a growing institution. Jeff Brock, centennial director, indicated, "The reader will 'live' the history of Cedarville College through its pages."

The book is the culmination of a two-year effort by Dr. Murdoch and the Centennial Committee. Copies may be purchased by mail or phone through the Centennial Office for $16.95 plus shipping.

Excerpts

"Within the minutes from their meeting on May 26, 1890, the Trustees demonstrated their frustration: 'in view of this fact and in view of the statement made in our report last year, the board would recommend that the whole enterprise be abandoned.'"

"Cedarville College will live to enrich the nation, gladden the church, and bless the world; and with the years it will grow in material equipment until it becomes the joy of this community, and is numbered high among the favored colleges of our country.' These words were uttered by Wilbert Renwick McChesney, second president of Cedarville College, in his inaugural address on November 12, 1915."

"When Dixon walked into the College executive office, he was met with a surprise. He was told the men had been discussing names for the future president and that his name had been suggested. 'It really knocked me over. My response was, you're crazy! How in the world can you ask someone to be president of something that is going 150 miles an hour, who has never led anything!'"

"One of the Oberlin athletes who visited the Cedarville campus...described it as a "mind-blowing experience, to say the very least...I used to think Oberlin was a fairly homogeneous place, but I have new insights now. Imagine being in a place where everyone is nice 24 hours a day...where cross country is run for Christ, where prayers and Bible sayings are plastered on the walls...In short, "culture shock" set in."

At the 91st Annual Commencement exercises, President Paul Dixon presents Dr. Murray Murdoch with the first copy of his newly released history of Cedarville College.

Vicki Butler '80

makes her home in Cincinnati, Ohio where she is a manager in general accounting at Gibson Greetings, Inc., the third largest greeting card company in the world. She is active at Faith Bible Church, having served as a Sunday school teacher, a guide in the Pioneer Girls organization, and a member of the missionary and music committees. As a student, Vicki played softball and holds the record as leading scorer in Cedarville womens basketball history. She traveled to China as part of Cedarville's MIS womens basketball team in 1981.

Eleanor Taylor

graduated in 1962 as a comprehensive social studies major. She worked as a bookkeeper at Baptist Mid-Missions for two years and earned teacher certification from Case Western Reserve University. She taught at Baptist Christian High School in Cleveland, Ohio for 19 years, then came to Cedarville on a one-year assignment in the Education Department. The next year, Eleanor became head resident of Willetts Hall. She has conducted a weekly Bible study for the womens volleyball and tennis teams and observes student teachers for the Education Department.

Mabel Young

graduated in 1972 with majors in elementary education and history. She has since earned two master's degrees from Wright State University, one in special education and one in administration/supervision. Mabel is an assistant principal in the Springfield City School System where she previously taught for 14 years. She is a member of Southgate Baptist Church, Springfield, Ohio, and has served as organist, chairman of the public relations committee, Sunday school superintendent, director of vacation Bible school, and in numerous other capacities.

Mike O'Quinn

and his wife Danette (Wetzel) graduated from Cedarville in 1980. Mike then took his English major to the University of Florida College of Law, earning a juris doctor degree in 1983. The O'Quinns make their home in Atlanta, Georgia with their daughter. Mike practices law with the firm of Hansell & Post and is involved primarily in corporate taxation and employee benefits. As a student Mike was involved in several evangelistic ministries and was the 1979 student body project chairman.

Mike Stephens

graduated in 1980 with a degree in business administration. He continued his formal education at the University of Dayton where he earned a master's degree in 1983. Mike is a vice president and chief operating officer at Greene County Memorial Hospital in Xenia, Ohio. He also serves as chairman of the school board for Emmanuel Baptist Christian School. Mike and Debby (Zaller '78) have two children.
